The Department of Health Education and Behavior at the University of Florida invites applications and nominations for the Mary F. Lane Endowed Professorship. We seek applications from exceptional scholars in these areas with a focus on youth who can also provide leadership in related research and educational initiatives at UF and beyond, apply theoretical frameworks relevant to health behaviors such as behavioral economics, have strong quantitative or mixed methods research skills, are experienced with multidisciplinary collaboration, and use digital technologies for health promotion research and implementation/dissemination of evidence-based health behavior change programs.

The successful candidate will: (a) conduct an independent program of research that complements department and college research initiatives, (b) participate in collaborative research programs as appropriate to his/her interests, (c) teach in the department's educational programs, and (d) contribute significantly to mentoring MS/PhD students. Candidates must have earned their doctorate in health education, health behavior, or an appropriately related field in public health or the social and behavioral sciences prior to faculty appointment. Applicants must exhibit an extensive record of scholarly productivity, extramural funding, and successful mentoring.

This 9-month, full time (1.0 FTE), position will begin August 16, 2019 or January 1, 2020. UF has a competitive benefits package. Our Department’s faculty are eligible for summer salary.

PREFERRED QUALIFICATIONS

The successful candidate must be able to work with students, faculty and staff from a wide range of social and cultural backgrounds. We are especially interested in candidates who can contribute to the diversity, inclusivity, and excellence of the academic community.

For additional information regarding faculty employment at UF please visit: https://faculty500.hr.ufl.edu/